Message from the President

Laura A Licht

Hi fellow NMDC members!

By the time you read this another NMDC Specialty is in the books. We hope it was a good one and you had a great time! If you have suggestions to make it better please send them along.

We have a new Board member! Please welcome Marilyn Hickok. She is an excellent choice and we are sure she will have insight that will prove valuable to the club.

In this issue we are starting a " Back in the Day" series. This will include pictures of past NMDC Roundup and Expos and some of the great Miniatures that are still making an impact in our pedigrees today. We hope you will enjoy it.

You know, I believe we are so blessed to be a part of a wonderful organization. We feel every member has their own unique gifts that can be utilized. Never think that what you can contribute is too small. Whether it is a trophy donation or offering your services, all of it is appreciated.

Like all clubs, we have had some difficult issues the past couple of years. But there is a beauty in it...we pull together and overcome. And we are stronger for it. We thank you all for your support.

Respect one another. Be kind. And give your Miniature Dachshunds lots of hugs!

MEAN SEEDS SEASON

August 23, 2022 National Purebred Dog Day®

Grass seeds are no joke. Many are dangerous for dogs (and even cats) in that they can easily penetrate outer skin through a dog's paws, legs, eyes, stomach, personal bits, and ear canals. If left untreated, these injuries can be incredibly painful, and in a worst case scenario, seeds can work their way into a dog's innards and cause damage that can be fatal.

Barbs found on some weed seeds keep it from falling off the dog's coat. Other seeds are dangerous because they have sharp points that nature designed to penetrate soil the moment the seeds come loose from the plant. The same sharp points that enable a seed to take hold in the ground and begin to grow roots can work its way into a dog's skin.

Bacterial enzymes will cause

the animal's hair and tissues to break down, but these tough seeds don't break down inside the dog's body. Sometimes, a dog can inhale or swallow a grass seed and it gets lodged in the lungs or stomach where an abscess may potentially develop. Some of the most dangerous grass seeds to our dogs, grasses like cheatgrass and foxtail, will start being produced in the next couple of months and you should not only be on the lookout for them as you play, hunt, and walk with your dog, but you should start getting into the habit of doing dog-foot-and-body checks every day with tweezers at hand.

Indications that something like a foxtail as penetrated a dog's nose or elsewhere is that he is sneezing or shaking his head. Feel for strange skin spots or lumps, and as you examine your dog's paw, separate the pads because that's where seeds often end up.

The Grass Awn Project doesn't seem to have been active for a number of years, but there are photos and good information at their site including case histories.

We hadn't intended to go down this road. We meant to share a link leading you to a report about the Jackson Hole Weed Management Association which has teamed up for the third year in a row with Teton County Weed and Pest, and Working Dogs for Conservation (the world's leading conservation detection dog organization) to locate, remove and eradicate saltcedar and perennial pepperweed on the Snake River. The Dachshund Poem

National Purebred Dog Day®

E. B. White's poem about Dachshunds:

The Dachshund's affectionate,
He wants to wed with you:
Lie down to sleep,
And he's in bed with you.
Sit in a chair,
He's there.
Depart,
You break his heart.

Weirdest Puppy Insurance Claims of 2021

By Mary Shaughney
AKC Pet Insurance

Puppies are a lot of wonderful things – snuggly, playful, spirited – but sometimes they can be a little too curious for their own good. No matter how puppy-proofed a home is or how careful owners are, puppies have a way of finding trouble. We’ve chosen six pet health insurance claims in which puppies (under the age of 12 months) managed to create some serious trouble for themselves!

INGESTION OF FOREIGN BODIES

Most puppies are extremely food motivated, which helps make training considerably easier! Unfortunately, puppies tend to follow the mindset of eating first and determine if it is edible later.

Some of the most expensive pet insurance claims come in the form of a puppy who has eaten something that he shouldn’t have. Foreign body ingestion is one of the top puppy claims every year!

CORN COB CONUNDRUM

One curious puppy was enjoying a fun night when she realized that a trash bag had been left unattended. Without hesitation, she began chowing down on the delicious-smelling corn cob sitting on the top of the trash pile. While several vegetables, such as corn, have nutritional benefits for dogs, the cob can be dangerous as it often will cause an intestinal blockage. When her owners realized their pup had eaten something that was causing her distress, they rushed to their veterinarian. Two X-rays, a surgery to remove the cob, and $2,400 later, their puppy was back to her normal self.

TOY TROUBLE

While many dog toys promote that they are “puppy safe,” it is important to supervise with any toy. One owner of a determined Golden Retriever puppy learned this lesson the hard way when her new dog ate the squeaker from a toy resulting in $5,055 in veterinary bills. The young puppy had been vomiting off and on for several days when her owners brought her to their veterinarian. An ultrasound showed an obstruction in her small intestine, and she was kept for observation for the following two nights. On the third day, another ultrasound showed the obstruction was no longer moving through the intestinal tract. Surgery was performed to remove the squeaker toy.

AN UNEXPECTED SNACK

A 12-week-old Havanese was rushed to the emergency veterinarian after his owner suspected that he had eaten two of the metal letters off of the dishwasher. After his veterinarian performed abdominal radiographs and determined the letters should pass naturally, the puppy’s owner was able to take him home under observation. The young puppy passed the metal letters; however, his owner was left with a $441 bill for the radiographs and emergency exam visit.

BROKEN/FRACTURED BONE

Young dogs are seemingly accident-prone, and some of the worst accidents result in broken or fractured bones. While many puppies take a tumble and shake it off, sometimes they end up injured. Because a puppy’s bones won’t reach maximum strength until after puberty, a sudden impact will often result in a fracture or break. This type of injury is costly between diagnostics to determine the type of fracture/break and providing the best treatment. Many dogs require some form of physical therapy after more severe breaks, which means incurring additional costs for complementary treatments to get a puppy back on his paws.

MISJUDGED HEIGHTS

A French Bulldog puppy was enjoying an afternoon snuggling on the couch when he saw his favorite toy peeking from underneath the coffee table. Ready to play, he leaped off the couch and immediately realized his mistake as he tumbled to the ground. Noticing that their new puppy was hurt, the owners rushed him to the veterinarian where he was diagnosed with a severe humerus fracture. The puppy underwent surgery and, after several months, was back to his usual playful self. His owners, unfortunately, paid a veterinary bill of $2,689.

CHEWING CONCERNS

While puppies learn how to go up and down the stairs, they spend a lot of time playing on the steps. One unsupervised Collie was chewing on the spindles of the stair railing in his home when his tooth got stuck. In a panic, he yanked himself free, but he fractured his tooth in the process. His veterinarian extracted the tooth and provided medications for a total bill of $318.

LEARNING TO PLAY

Toy Manchester Terriers are known for their spirited and athletic nature. This trait got a 7-month-old puppy in trouble when he was playing on the kitchen table with his family's cat. When the cat decided she was bored of the game, she shoved the puppy off the table. The family rushed to the emergency veterinary clinic where the puppy was diagnosed with a severe break. Ultimately, he had a metal plate inserted into his leg. After several weeks of rest and physical therapy, the puppy was back on his feet; however, his owners were left paying off a veterinary bill for $1,709!

THE VALUE OF PET INSURANCE

Luckily, the puppy owners in each of these scenarios had a policy with AKC Pet Insurance. Knowing they would be reimbursed for diagnostic and treatment costs covered by their policies, owners were able to choose the best treatment options for their puppy.
